Jane Austen

Pride and Prejudice is the most famous of Jane Austen's novels, and its opening is one of the most famous lines in English literature – "It is a truth universally acknowledged, that a single man in possession of a good fortune, must be in want of a wife." Jane Austen (1775 – 1817) was an English novelist whose works of romantic fiction set among the gentry have earned her a place as one of the most widely read and most beloved writers in English literature. Amongst scholars and critics, Austen’s realism and biting social commentary have cemented her historical importance as a writer. Though the story’s setting is uniquely turn of the 19th century, it retains a fascination for modern readers, continuing near the top of lists of ‘most loved books’ and still receives considerable attention from literary critics.
